WRITING

When Martin Luther saw a problem, he wrote down his ideas about it. His writing was used to tell others about the problem. Think about something you would like to change. It can be something small (my dog has bad breath) or something big (poverty). Write several sentences about the problem you'd like to change. Use one or two compound-complex sentences in your writing. Underline your compound-complex sentences. Use the information on the worksheet that we did in class to help you craft an excellent sentence.
